ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Related Product Information for PIGF active protein	Placenta growth factor (PIGF) is a member of the vascular endothelial growth factor (VEGF) family of growth factors. PIGF and VEGF share primary structural as well as limited amino acid sequence homology with the A and B chains of PDGF. All eight cysteine residues involved in intra and interchain disulfides are conserved among these growth factors. As a result of alternative splicing, three PIGF RNAs encoding monomeric human PIGF-1, PIGF-2 and PIGF-3 isoform precursors containing 149, 179 and 219 amino acid residues, respectively, have been described. In normal mouse tissues, only one mouse PIGF mRNA encoding the equivalent of human PIGF-2 has been identified. Mouse PIGF shares 65% amino acid identity with human PIGF-2. The gene for PIGF has been mapped to mouse chromosome 12 and human chromosome 14. PIGF binds with high affinity to Flt1, but not to Flk1/KDR.
